SOMERVILLE, TENNESSEE, FRIDAY, AUGUST 20, 1920

NEW SERIES: VOL. XIV.—NO. 8

John Crawford

Thursday morning on the five thirty train from Nashville the body of John Crawford of Williston vicinity arrived in Somerville from France where he fell a victim to flu while serving his country at arms in the world war. The arrival of the dead soldier had been looked for two days prior to its coming and all the plans for a military funeral had been made.

The body was carried from the train to the Methodist church where it will be held until this afternoon at 3 when it will be carried to Shady Grove Grave Yard near Williston near the boyhood home of the deceased and interred in the family lot by the sides of dear ones gone before. A full military funeral will be accorded him. A firing squad from Jackson will arrive here on the afternoon train and will join the local organization of the American Legion which will have charge of the services to be conducted at the grave. The religious services will be at the grave, also, and will be conducted by Rev. E. A. Tucker, during the war connected with the enlisted men at Park field near Memphis as a Chaplain, assisted by Rev. J. W. McNutt, pastor of the Presbyterian church in this city.

Three brothers of the deceased soldier live between this city and Williston not far from the scene of today's exercises, and where they were all reared. They are Harry, Ed and Whit Crawford.

An Old Fault Finder

An irritable and fault finding disposition is often caused by indigestion. A man with good digestion and bowels that act regularly is usually good natured. When troubled with indigestion or constipation take Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels.

A Pleasant Family Reunion

Wednesday, August 11, at the W. S. Cole home near Warren, now occupied by Leland Cole and family, a family reunion with a picnic dinner was held in honor of Rev. L. B. Nixon and family of Sioux City, Iowa, who have been visiting with Mrs. Nixon's mother, Mrs. M. E. Cole, and with the brothers and sisters who all live in the vicinity.

A bountiful dinner was served under the big oak trees near the house.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Nixon have visited here several times this was the only time all the children and grandchildren were present at the same time. The four older children of Mr. and Mrs. Nixon who did not accompany their parents on this visit, were the only members of the family not present.

It was with a feeling of sadness that all remembered that within the last two years Mr. Cole and his two daughters, Mrs. Bessie Griffin and Mrs. LaVerne Barran, had passed away never to return.

The children present with their families were, Mrs. F. B. Nixon, Mrs. Marvin Stafford, Mrs. Allie Douglas, Mrs. Willie Murphy, John and Leland Cole, Marshal Griffin and Sam Barron Jr. Several pictures were taken of Mrs. Cole, her children and grandchildren.

A fervent prayer was offered by Rev. F. B. Nixon for this family of forty-four persons who are never likely to all be again present at the same time in the old home.

Mr. Nixon and family were prevented from returning to Sioux City this week by the illness of their little daughter with pneumonia at the home of Marvin Stafford.

County Council Doing Fine Work

Possibly no topic discussed at Middle Tennessee institute met with more interest and enthusiasm than that of the county council of agriculture. Middle Tennessee at present leads the other sections of the State in the number of these organizations and reports from leaders of some of these organizations showed that they were doing things for the farmers.

The first speaker was E. C. Cunningham, president the Montgomery county council of agriculture and one of the largest and liveliest councils in this grand division. Mr. Cunningham told in a most interesting manner of the work that has been done in Montgomery County.

He said the success of this Council was largely due to the untiring efforts of the county agricultural agent and the home demonstration agent. The business men of the county have also cooperated in a most splendid manner said Mr. Cunningham, with these agents and with the farmers. The county council has accomplished more for the farmer of Montgomery County during the past seven months, than had been done for them in ten years.

Mr. Cunningham told how the council boosts the boys and girls club work in the county, and stimulates interest in better roads, conducts health survey-purebred sire campaign and has organized a dairy shipping association.

One of the biggest things the council has done for Montgomery County said Mr. Cunningham, "is the study and survey that has been made of rural conditions, and remedying those things thru the united efforts of the farmers."

The council advocates the breaking away from the one crop system. For years and years Montgomery has been a tobacco raising county, and has actually had to buy feed this year as a result of the council's work, the county will have feed to sell.

The council has also boosted the county fair, strawberry and sweet potato associations, etc.

William A. Schoenfeld, assistant director of the Division of Extension, in the absence of Hon. J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, discussed the progress of the federation and what it means to the farmers. Mr. Schoenfeld, who has only recently made a trip to many states for the Division of Extension for the purpose of studying the various bureaus and state federations, stated that the outlook for the organization is brighter than any other organization for farmers that has ever been started and that it is doing some wonderful things in many states. He stated that its purpose was to improve country life in general, bringing about better conditions in the home, better schools, churches, roads and help the farmers get a fair share of the price the consumer has to pay for farm products. Other organizations that have sprung up from time to time failed largely because they did not take all these things into consideration.

Professor Schoenfeld said Tennessee will need such an organization very soon. He said that there were three types in the state, the extremes, the too fast and the too slow. It is the middle ground on which Tennessee wants to stand. He told of the splendid work that is being done by the state council in New York, and compared other eastern states with Tennessee.

Paul Levy, of Lawrence County, was the next speaker. He told of the splendid organization of four hundred members in his county. One of the results of its work has been the increase of rural school term from five to seven months, and at the same time secured an increase in pay for teachers. Not only this but the council has saved the farmers of the county more than $10,000 on seeds and fertilizers. The council has also succeeded in organizing strong fruit growers associations, livestock associations, etc.

The health department of the council has seventeen physicians cooperating and gives school children of the county free medical examinations.

Joe Frank Porter, chairman of the Maury County Council, told of the accomplishments of the organization. He said the council has succeeded in securing the establishment of permanent quarters in the court house. It is now advocating the construction of good roads for two miles in each direction from the rural schools, encouraging better home life in the country, the making of the farm more attractive in order to keep the young men at home.

Mr. Porter said the council must not expect to accomplish too much all at one time, that the work and efforts of the council were sure of success because of the cooperation of the farmers.

Increased Tenancy Decried

Some of the outstanding features gathered from the meeting as a whole were that agriculture is now passing thru a critical period and that farmers must meet the situation by linking themselves together; that increased tenancy must be stopped and the drift from the farm to the city checked; agriculture is to develop as it should. It was emphasized that the increase in tenancy not only means that the best of the farm lands will soon be depleted, but it is a social and political problem, for it cannot be expected that those who have no abiding interest in the land or community will contribute as much to the development of rural life as they would if they owned the land.

The need of more home orchards and their proper management, care of the farm woodlands and the reclamation of wastelands emphasized by able speakers. Men trained in sheep husbandry urged that more farmers in Middle Tennessee should have farm flocks, pointing out that they are sure money makers and at the same time are unexcelled when it comes to cleaning fields and enriching land. Livestock specialists urged the farmers to use purebred sires of all kinds for herd improvement and pointed out great loss to the farmers of the State each year because of the use of the scrub sires. They increase the part livestock play on the farm in enriching the land.

To sum up the main thought of the meeting it might well be said that they are follows:—The requirements of successful farming is the ability to make a full and comfortable living from the land; to rear a family carefully and well; to be of good service to the community in assisting and cooperating with others, to leave the farm more productive than when it was purchased.

Middle Tennessee Farmers' Institute Splendid Success

With delegates from practically every Middle Tennessee county in attendance, the Farmers' Institute which was conducted at Columbia Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, August 10, 11, and 12 was one of the most successful meetings in the history of the organization. Attendance the second day broke all previous records.

While every session of both the farmers and homemakers was characterized by splendid interest and enthusiasm, the outstanding feature of the meeting was the formation of permanent organization, the report of the committee on organization being adopted unanimously. It was shown in the report that popular sentiment of the farmers of this grand division of the state favored such an organization. The report also stated that the county council of agriculture is the accepted form for county organization and that the annual meeting at Columbia should become a farmers convention, an organization governing all Middle Tennessee.
